PROTECT NATURE'S PROTECTORS

Rangers are nature's protectors and first responders

Brave men and women working tirelessly to protect the natural world.
Many risk their lives every day in remote, high-risk regions and conflict zones.

Rangers are the most effective and irreplaceable frontline resource in nature conservation, yet they are generally underpaid, poorly equipped and insufficiently trained. Not only does this inhibit their ability to protect wildlife effectively, but it also puts the rangers themselves in danger.

But... Over 120 rangers are killed in the field each year

THIN GREEN LINE FOUNDATION UK'S MISSION

To provide rangers with the vital support they need to do their job safely and effectively. We are dedicated to protecting wildlife by supporting rangers on the frontline of wildlife and habitat conservation to protect biodiversity around the world.

Four critical programmes support rangers:

TRAINING

40% of rangers in Africa and Asia tell us they do not feel adequately trained to do their job protecting wildlife. LEAD Ranger, run in collaboration with International Anti-Poaching Foundation and Ranger Campus, is a sustainable train-the-trainer model of training, delivering best practice to rangers in the field. The course includes remote first aid.

EQUIPMENT

Around 60% of rangers in Africa and Asia lack the basic equipment to do their job effectively – often while working in challenging conditions and situations. Being ill-equipped reduces conservation effectiveness and costs rangers lives. Our Critical Equipment Programme provides the kit rangers need most.

EMERGENCY SUPPORT

Many rangers work in high risk regions and conflict zones. 82% of rangers in Africa and Asia say they have faced a life-threatening situation and over 80% have little or no life insurance. With our Fallen Ranger Fund, we provide support to rangers and their communities in emergency situations, including to families when a ranger parent is killed whilst on duty.

ADVOCACY AND CONNECTION

Rangers are the keyworkers in biodiversity protection, climate mitigation and protection from zoonotic diseases – we need to listen to them! We work to raise the profile of rangers worldwide, give them a voice at policy level, provide connection across countries and regions to share knowledge and create a worldwide ranger community.
